income-tax law, thus shifting a large part of the burden of taxation from the poor and those best able to pay; in the Federal reserve act it has emancipated the commercial and industrial enterprises of the land from the tralldom of great banking centers, has decentralized the banking capital of the country, has localized credit and provided a safe and sound banking system which ought to protect the people against the evils of the heretofore ever-recurring financial panics; it has strengthened and defined the antitrust laws so that legitimate business can know its legal rights, but combinations of capital no longer oppress without answering at the bar of justice; and finally, while steadfastly advocating peace so long as peace could come with honor, but realizing that we lived in no ordinary times and were beset with danger, the party has wisely and patriotically enacted measures looking to the national defense, one of which assures a basis for such expression of the army and militia of the States as to provide adequate protection against any immediate or future foreign aggression.

The measures supported by the party and now pending in Congress to provide for national aid for good roads and vocational education; to purchase, own and operate merchant ships for a limited period; to give independence to the Philippine Islands and to establish a farmers' land-bank system whereby the agricultural community can obtain capital upon terms of long time and at low rates of interest, are entitled to cordial approval and support.

No navy in English of American history ever endangered the liberties of the people, and as our first line of defense in time of possible war we approve any reasonable expenditure which may be necessary to equip and maintain the efficiency of the American navy.

We are gratified to know that the delegation from this State cordially and faithfully co-operate in sustaining every important measure of the national administration, and we therefore, approve the record of the Honorable Thomas S. Martin and Claude A. Swanson, Senators, and of the representatives from Virginia in the Congress of the United States.

We heartily endorse and approve the wise, businesslike and patriotic administration of Henry C. Stuart, Governor of Virginia, together with the record of the last General Assembly, controlled in both of its branches by the Democratic party.

It is upon its record of promises performed and deeds done that the party appeals to the people of the nation for a renewal of their confidence. When the rest of the world is at war we are in peace; when most of mankind are in want we have plenty. Peace and prosperity is the platform upon which we plead title to the suffrage of the people.

PESSIMISM IN GERMANY

Desire for Peace Growing in Official and Unofficial Circles

The Hague, June 2.—That President Wilson offered his service as mediator to both groups of belligerents is reported in the German newspaper Vossische Zeitung. According to this newspaper, President Wilson offered to mediate at the outbreak of the war, but that his good offices were rejected. The American President is then said to have declared that his offer would remain open while the war lasted, but that he would not renew his overtures unless intervention was desired by both sides.

In official circles in Berlin the utmost secrecy is maintained relative to constantly reiterated reports that Prince von Buelow, former German Ambassador to Italy, will go to the United States on a mission of 'high and international importance.' However, no secret is made of the fact that the desire for peace is growing in official and unofficial circles in Germany and Austria.

The slowness of German progress at Verdun and the horrible losses suffered by the German forces there have resulted in a fresh wave of pessimism.

The German people have begun to fear that the allies will refuse to consider peace overtures and that the German empire will have to fight to its very death. English and French newspapers, which are sold in Berlin show a marked difference in their tone from the German newspapers. The papers printed in the allied nations breathe defiance and optimism in direct contrast with the attitude of the German papers.

We never have a long spell of sickness in our family, since we commenced using Black-Draught."

A SYMBOL OF HEALTH

The Pythagorians of Ancient Greece ate simple food, practiced temperance and purity. As a badge they used the five pointed star which they regarded as a symbol of health. A red five pointed star appears on each package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and still fulfills its ancient mission as a symbol of health. If you are troubled with indigestion, biliousness or constipation, get a package of these tablets from your druggist. You will be surprised at the quick relief which they afford. Obtainable everywhere.
